This being the first of its kind in Uganda, you are pioneers of the process that will not only change the face of participation in politics in this country but also immensely contribute to the on-going parliamentary reforms.

Many thanks go to the Members of the Executive Board of Africa Leadership Institute (AFLI), Hon. David Pulkol Bwangamoe, Hon. Elly Karuhanga, Hon. Jesica Eriyo, Mr. David Mukholi, Mr. Levi Ochieng, Mr. Frank Muhereza, Mr. Tobias Onweng, Mr. Sylvester Kugonza and Mr. Juma Okuku for directing and guiding this pioneering work. Also appreciated is the work of Interns from United States of America, seconded from the School for International Training (SIT) collaborative programme; Colleen Mallahan (University of Notre Dane), Meredith Katz (University of Wesleyan) and Amanda Schreiers (University of Colorado).

We extend our gratitude to a team of experts from Projset consultants led by Robert Kintu and Mubiru Fred. Their Research Assistants; Luyuyo Abbey, Gwoke Joachim and Byamah Hillary who provided back up support in terms of back up objective analytical skills and quality assurance they provided as required of the study.

Our gratitude also goes to M & A Data and Training Consultants (MODEX), Nairobi, Kenya for designing with AFLI's management, the study methodology and training the staff and research assistants.

In terms of resources, AFLI is indebted to the Government of United States of America for supporting this pioneering research with a grant from the Department of State, Human Rights and Democracy Fund. This was built on previous support given to AFLI in support for other successfully accomplished projects.

AFLI is also grateful to the Royal Netherlands Embassy in Uganda for their timely additional funding support to enable AFLI widely share the findings of this Parliamentary Performance Scorecard. This also helped AFLI take this report to constituency level for influential publics and opinion makers not only discuss the performance of their MPs at national level but also relate it to the Constituency Development Fund (CDF). By so doing citizens have got a chance to critically assess the manner in which development resources channel through their MPs have worked or not worked for their benefit. This support therefore enables constituents to propose policy guidelines and legislation to govern CDF.

FOREWORD

The aim of this project is to strengthen parliamentary democracy by identifying areas for reform and increasing the ability of ordinary citizens to hold their Members of Parliament accountable and thereby influence their actions.

This project seeks to empower citizens to exercise their fundamental rights of access to information in the custody of Government in a much simplified end user way. It will also inform the Parliamentary Commission, MPs and Cabinet on areas for reform.

When you read the full report, you will get the overall picture of how Parliament of the republic of Uganda as a whole, has performed and how each individual MP's performance has been scored. The report is more informative than prescriptive. Some of the results are therefore pointers to areas in our parliamentary system where reforms are urgently needed.

However, using one year to assess the performance of MPs in a five year term is not fair and does not comprehensively assist to evaluate the actual overall performance and competence of an MP. It is like a photograph of a person taken one and half years ago. The person may not look like it anymore but none the less, it still remains that person's photograph. So, much as some MPs might have performed differently in the other four sessions than what is captured in this report, it nonetheless does not remove the fact that the said MPs performed as depicted in this report from June 2004 to May 2005.

AFLI will therefore be carrying out this parliamentary performance audit exercise annually to continually ensure focused advocacy and improvement in the performance of Parliament . Also to increase and guide in a qualitative and objective way, public scrutiny of the performance of their leaders in the legislature. In this way, AFLI and its collaborating partners will continue to contribute to practical interventions for an enhanced legislature which is critical for better governance in Uganda.

We promise in years ahead, a much more innovative, collaborative and improved partnership as we strive to achieve our vision for an effective, efficient, responsive, transparent and accountable leadership in Africa.

This project was accomplished with funding support from the Government of the United States of America and the Netherlands embassy in Uganda.

On behalf of AFLI Executive Board members I welcome you to read this pioneering study in Uganda and hopefully, you will find immense benefit in using it.

Thank you,

Elly Karuhanga
Vice Chairman

The Thinking behind the MPs Performance Scorecard

This scorecard report is underpinned by the philosophy of effective representative democracy which Africa Leadership Institute subscribes to. In ancient days nation-states were small. So, almost everyone had a chance of debating the great affairs of the state. In Greek nation-states for example, which were cities, all residents of the city would converge at city squares and deliberate on issues of public importance. In Africa, there was a hierarchy of traditional leadership stretching from the family, clan, council of elders up to the Chiefs and/or the Kings. Through this hierarchy, views, opinions and concerns of ordinary people were channelled and addressed by those in authority.

But due to the complexities of modernity and population increase, the growing affairs of the State can't be managed like in the ancient days. Hence the need to have elected representatives to deliberate on the affairs of Government on behalf of the masses. These are the Members of Parliament (MPs) who enact laws, approve Government policies, budget expenditure outlays and service delivery programmes. When MPs are elected, they sign a social contract with the electorate to effectively represent them. If MPs fail in their role, the people have a right to recall them or to vote them out in the next general elections. These rights of recall and freedom to vote an MP of one's own choice is provided for in the laws of Uganda. In the case of Uganda, the right of recall of MPs is complimented by the right of access to information, which is also guaranteed by the Constitution and the Information Act.

As Democracy takes root in Uganda and becomes away of life, voters need to know how their MPs perform in the discharge of their duties as peoples representatives and be able to influence their actions. Unfortunately for a long time in much of Africa, the ordinary citizens find it too complicated to follow closely, the activities of their Governments and performance of their leaders. Since the scene of Government decision making fora is too distant for ordinary citizens and is transacted behind closed doors with labels on doors such as -'Silence cabinet meeting in progress'. And in Parliament, there is limited space for the public, in the 'strangers' gallery. Cabinet memos bear the official stamp-'Confidential and secret'. The official record of proceedings of Parliament, the Hansard, is coded in parliamentary language and largely not available in libraries through out the country.

Although many Parliaments in Africa are now allowing television cameras, radio and print media journalists in their chambers, their reports are not easily disseminated to all the electorate. Few people access newspapers, radio and television. More so, the media only selects what is news worthy to report and not necessarily what is important for the electorate to build trends and patterns of their MPs performance in the House. Even the verbatim recordings of Parliamentary proceedings in the Hansards are not only difficult to access but also to read and summarise. They are bulky. The current media reporting of the proceedings of Parliament, does not help citizens to effectively monitor the performance of their MPs in terms of Bills, Motions, Petitions and questions presented or Points of Orders raised ; Attendance of Parliamentary proceedings or absenteeism etc. For the ordinary citizen, this information about Parliament and MPs, should be summarised and packaged in a user friendly manner for informed decision making by members of the general public. This is to enable them participate in following public affairs and appreciate the performance of their MPs. This is important, as MPs endeavour to keep the executive branch in check as well as create policies and laws for the justice and wellbeing of all. In the process, the electorate may feel satisfied with their MPs work and identify with legislative outcomes.

MPs are paid using tax payer's money. Besides, they are one of the highest paid Government officials in the country. Like all public servants, they have to account for the high pay cheques they draw in terms of time spent on and quality of their work. Parliament is supposed to police the Executive while the electorate are supposed to police the Parliament. While also policing the performance of executive branch of Government on behalf of the electorate, there is need to strengthen the electorate, to increase their scrutiny of the conduct, integrity and performance of their own MPs.

While parliament is legislating, various interest groups want to push certain positions through or get them on to the agenda of the August House. However, knowing whom to influence and how is important. Its also important to know how Government prioritises public issues and bills for debate and enactment. By this, various interest groups will own the legislative outcomes and implementation of such laws will be made easier because people will identify with and own the law.

Besides, the public scrutiny of MPs, which is the subject of this report, the scorecard also helps both the MPs and the executive to reflect on their own performance and device internal mechanisms for improvement.

Whereas in the past there has been no institution or organisations in Uganda that have undertaken the task of assisting citizens to scrutinise the performance of their own leaders and presenting their findings in a simplified, comprehensive and graphical way, Africa Leadership Institute in conducting this scorecard research has now come in to fill this critical gap, as a public policy think tank. This scorecard report therefore, simplifies and summarises the performance of the 7th Parliament of Uganda in general, scores and grades individual MP's performance to enable the reader to understand the leaders performance at a glance.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Introduction:

The Score card report of the 7th Parliament of the republic of Uganda is a project of Africa Leadership Institute (AFLI) implemented under the broad programme of Building Institutions for a Multi-Party democratic dispensation.

Study objectives:

The project aimed to audit performance of the 7th Parliament of Uganda in general and grade the score performance of each individual Member of Parliament in order to enable the electorate hold their leaders accountable. It also aimed to assist citizens make informed decisions during elections. Overall, it's to strengthen and influence the manner in which ordinary citizens hold their leaders publicly accountable and thereby keep them in check. Through this project, AFLI and its development support agencies seek in a concrete way, to empower citizens to exercise their fundamental rights of access to information in the custody of Government or its agencies and thereby enabling them to take informed decisions as democracy takes root and becomes a daily way of life in Uganda.

Methodology:

The study findings captured by this report, is based on the study of the 7th Parliament operating under the Movement system of governance. Due to limited time and financial resources, the study was restricted to a randomly sampled parliamentary period covering only one complete parliamentary session ranging from June 2004 to May 2005. The study began at the start of October 2005 and was completed in the last half of January 2006.

The study population comprised a total of 305 elected MPs from the 2001 elections and subsequent by-elections. The 7th Parliament is composed of 214 directly elected constituency representatives, 56 district women representatives, 10 Uganda People's Defense Force representatives, 5 Youth representatives, 5 representatives of Persons With Disabilities, 5 Workers' representatives and 10 ex-officio MPs appointed by the President.

In order to present the public with the financial burden (effect) of lack of quorum to the tax payer and national development efforts, the research team considered it prudent to carry out a cross-tabulated analysis of the consolidated individual's pay package (of Uganda shillings. 5,519,300) that each MP receives per month, against their actual attendance or none-attendance of House business. When the research team randomly sampled attendance roll call for purposes of examining the MPs' financial accountability based on House attendance, the lot fell on the signed records of MPs' daily attendance to Parliament covering the period between June 7th 2005 and January 6th 2006 that is kept at the Parliament. This period translates into 67 sittings in total.

Consisting of four months of intense work which have gone into this project execution, the results are presented in such a way as to allow facts speak for themselves. AFLI research team has deliberately made no attempt to interpret or draw conclusions from the findings of this pioneering study of Parliament of Uganda. But instead, the reader or each individual stakeholder has been left to draw his / her own conclusions and take such necessary action as they deem fit.

MPs that scored zero in the analysis were not listed in the tables showing MPs' contributions to Motions, Bills, supplementary questions, private Bills, asking of oral questions, raising ministerial statements, petitions brought to the House and contributions to petitions.

Individual MPs' Scorecard

Grading in this study has been done according to positive contributions. In this scoring method the ranges will appear as follows:

- F = 0
- D = 1-5
- C = 6-10
- B = 11-15
- A = 16 and above

Out of 305 MPs, Only 7 scored As; 9 scored Bs; 52 scored Cs; 172 scored Ds and 65 scored Fs

Note that although both the Speaker and Deputy Speaker play a neutral role in Parliament, since they represent individual constituencies and have an opportunity to request other MPS to bring issues in Parliament on their behalf, they were also graded the same way as other MPS.

MPs' Financial Accountability Based on House Attendance

Out of 67 actual Parliamentary attendance sittings sampled, the MP with the highest attendance, Aggrey Awori had 42 sittings in the House and recieved 19,375,213.2 as legitimate payment and 11,532,866.8 as illegitimate payment. Sebuliba Mutumba, Nsubuga Nsambu and Bulemezi Nalubega Lydia follow. They had 35 sittings each in the House and each received Sh 16,146,011 as legitimate payment and Sh 14,762,069 as illegitimate payment. Those who attended zero times (the least attendants) received all the Sh 30,908,080 each as illegitimate payment. The total legitimate pay during the whole 67 sampled sittings was therefore only Uganda shillings 2,593,049,357 billion, while the total illegitimate money received by MPs was Sh 6,865,745,749 billion. This therefore constitutes an unnecessary cost to the Ugandan tax payers as money spent on the MPs for the time they did not spend in the House transacting official business for which they were elected.

Conclusion:

The report has a rich array of information for various usage by stakeholders; the executive branch of Government, Parliamentary Commission, civil society organizations, political parties and by the electorate. AFLI research team deliberately, did not make recommendations for stakeholders but allowed leverage for various interpretation and usage depending on the users.

1.0 Introduction

The section below gives a brief history of the Parliament of Uganda and the composition of the 7th Parliament.

1.1 History of the Parliament of Uganda

The foundation stone for the Parliament Building was laid on December 18, 1956, by the Governor of Uganda, Sir Andrew Cohen but construction of the main building did not commence until 1958. On October, 5th 1962, the Prime Minister Apollo Milton Obote laid the foundation stone for the independence arch.

The first sitting of the first session of the Parliament of Uganda was convened on Wednesday, October 10, 1962 and had 88 MPs. The Speaker was John Griffin, O.C. and the Deputy Speaker was Hon. S.W. Kulubya.

The legislative arm of Government has had different names since independence;

1st Parliament: 1962 to May 1966 – National Assembly

2nd Parliament: 1967 to January 1971 – National Assembly

1971 to 1979 – No legislative arm of Government

3rd 1979 – 1980 – National Consultative Council

4th Parliament: December 1980 to July 27, 1985 – National Assembly

1985 to January 1986- no legislative arm of Government

5th Parliament: 1986 to 1996 National Resistance Council

6th Parliament: 1996 to 2001 Parliament of Uganda

7th Parliament: 2001 to 2006 Parliament of Uganda

A Parliamentary term is 5 years from the date of its first sitting after a general election and is divided into sessions.

A session is the calendar year of Parliament, and is opened by the Speaker a few days before the reading of the national budget. Thereafter, Parliament sits at least three days in a week, approximately 30 weeks in a year.

The current Parliament is the 7th since independence in 1962. MPs were sworn in on July 3th-4rd, 2001. The Seventh Parliament is composed of 214 constituency representatives, 56 district women representatives, 10 Uganda People's Defense Force (UPDF) representatives, 5 Youth representatives, 5 Representatives of the persons with disabilities, 5 Workers' representatives and 10 ex-officio MPs bringing the total to 305.

1.2 Composition of committees of the Parliament

The Parliament appoints Standing, Sessional or Select committees for the efficient discharge of its functions. Members of the standing committees are elected from among the MPs during the first session of Parliament and last the entire / given term of Parliament.

The functions of the standing committees include:

To discuss and make recommendations on all Bills before Parliament.

- Initiate any Bill within their respective areas of competence
- Assess and evaluate activities of Government and other bodies
- Carry out relevant research in their respective fields
- Report to Parliament on their functions.

The 7th Parliament has 12 standing committees; Public Accounts Committee (PAC) ; Business; National Economy; Committee on Appointments; Committee on Rules, Privileges and Discipline ; Government Assurance ; Commissions, Statutory Authorities and State Enterprises; Budget Committee; HIV / AIDS; Local Government; Local Government Accounts; Science and Technology ; Equal opportunities.

Sessional committees are elected by MPs at the beginning of every session of Parliament. Their functions include:

- To examine and comment on policy matters affecting the ministries covered by them.
- To initiate or evaluate action programmes of these ministries and to make appropriate recommendations on them.
- To examine critically Government recurrent and capital budget estimates and to make recommendations on them for the general debate in the House.
- To monitor the performance of the ministries and
- To ensure Government compliance.

The 7th Parliament has 10 Sessional committees: on Agriculture, Animal Industry and Fisheries; Defense and Internal Affairs; Presidency and Foreign Affairs; Natural Resources; Public Service and Local Government; Tourism Trade and Industry; Works, Housing and Communications, Social Services; Legal and Parliamentary Affairs; Finance Planning and Economic Development.

Select committees are appointed by the Parliament for specific purposes, usually not directly falling under any of the Sessional or Standing committees. After reporting its finding to the House, a select committee is automatically dissolved.

Ad hoc committees are appointed to investigate any matters of public importance that do not come under the jurisdiction of the Sessional or Standing committee and has not been dealt with by a Select committee.

This document seeks to give a detailed statistical performance audit of the Members of Parliament. The research has analysed the official document of verbatim record of the Parliament to derive the performance information that follows.

2.0 Methodology and approach

This parliamentary analysis for the year beginning June 2004 and ending May 2005 was quantitative. The target group for the analysis was all members of the seventh Parliament for the said period which then formed the population of the study. The population of the study comprised of all the 305 elected MPs from the 2001 elections and subsequent by-elections.

2.1 Sampling

In the context of this study, MPs' performance and contribution in Parliament, the Speaker and Deputy Speaker of the House too represent constituencies, but due to their assumed role as neutral participants, i.e. they do not contribute to Bills or Motions or ask questions. The sample frame for this study comprised of a total of 305 MPs is composed of 214 constituency representatives, 56 district woman representatives, 10 Uganda People's Defense Force (UPDF) representatives, 5 Youth representatives, 5 Representatives of the persons with Disabilities, 5 Workers' representatives and 10 ex-officio.

2.2 Source of data

The data used in this study was from the Hansard reports. The Hansard is a verbatim record of all the proceedings of Parliament that are published in both hard copy and soft copy on the internet for public use. The data was collected from all Hansards of the period under consideration except for the month of April and May 2005 for which the Hansards were not ready at the time of this report. The sampling for attendance in Parliament picked the list of attendance in Parliament during the year of January 2005 to December 2005. Note: since the Deputy Speaker, Speaker and Attorney General represent constituencies in their respective areas; they are considered part of the sample size of this study.

2.3 Data collection / extraction

All the indicators to be analysed in order to meet the study objectives were first identified.

A structured questionnaire made up of both open and close ended questions was designed and was made up of the following main parts:

- Members background information
- Bills brought to the House and contributions to them
- Motions brought to the House and contributions to them
- Oral questions asked in the House
- Ministerial statements
- Personal explanations
- Committee reports
- Budget speech
- State of the Nation Address
- Procedure / disciplinary issues

2.4 Data coding and labelling

Data coding involved attaching numerical codes to open ended responses that were elicited but which were not pre-coded in the instrument.

Training – then the research assistants were trained by MODEX Training Consultants on understanding the coding scheme and how to extract data from the Hansard and also how to enter it into the questionnaire.

After the training, research assistants systematically went through the Hansard and extracted the information which was then used to complete the questionnaires for the individual MPs including the deceased. The extraction / transfer involved actual counting of the specific types of contribution an MP made in the House as relates to the variables mentioned above.

2.5 Data entry

Based on the questionnaire, a data entry screen was designed using SPSS (Statistical Package for Social Scientists) Data Editor, version 11.0. The data was manually keyed into the Data Editor. To maintain accuracy during data entry, the data analyst did random checks after every 10 completed questionnaires entered.

2.6 Cleaning and verification

Care was taken to ensure that the data entry clerks accurately entered the information. To ensure 100% verification the data was entered twice by two different sets of data entry clerks. The two sets of data were subjected to editing and cleaning.

Frequency distribution analysis was done on all the variables in the data sets to confirm the absence of any outliers or wrong entries.

To ensure clean data, the following were done:

- All values were correct in rows and columns
- Missing values were kept to absolute minimum (below 1%)
- No variable contained any outliers (out of range values)
- For each variable, all values were labeled
- For each MP all variables were entered with correct information.

The cleaning test was done using a simple frequency count for each variable. For example, the data analyst went through the output tables to search for any invalid values (misabeled, out of range, missing etc.). The margin of error was maintained at 5%.

2.7 Analysis

The final data set was then processed in SPSS 11.0 to produce the summary tables of the MPs participation and contribution in Parliament. Information contained in the summary tables were analysed to come up with reports. Some variables were analysed as background variables alongside the key indicators. These consisted of:

- Sex
- Constituency
- Status (portfolio) in the House
- Mode of ascension
- Mode of representation

The analytical tools used in the analysis were: frequency distribution and percentages, mean averages, standard deviation, sums / totals (minimum and maximum) . To generate the scorecard, the case summaries were transferred to Microsoft Excel, then tallying was done on the various variables on a case by case basis. Each MP represented one case for this purpose.

Grading in this study has been done according to positive contributions MPs made in Parliament and were each weighted under the following scale;

A >15
B >10
C > 5
D = 1-5
F = 0

In this scoring method the ranges will appear as follows:

F = 0
D = 1-5
C = 6-10
B = 11-15
A = 16 and above

Note: MPs that scored zero in the analysis were not listed in the tables. Tables are showing MPs' contributions to Motions, bills, supplementary questions, private bills, asking of oral questions, raising ministerial statements, petitions brought to the House and contributions to petitions.

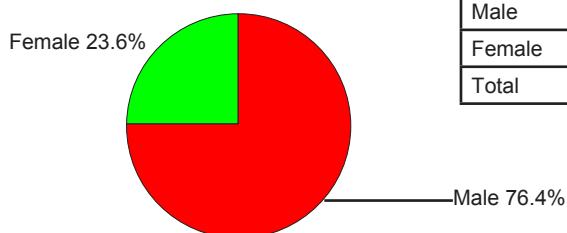

3.0 Findings of the MPs performance audit

The findings in this section are analysed using SPSS; the following section gives a detailed account of the analysis to show the participation of the MPs in the Seventh Ugandan Parliament. For neutral analysis, the Speaker should have been excluded from this analysis since it is assumed that he or she should be a moderator not actor during all parliamentary proceedings. However, in this case our analysis was skewed towards the role of MPs as representatives of respective constituencies and our Speakers are MPs representing constituencies. Therefore, for the purpose of this study the sample size of the target subjects was set at 305 MPs. Overall distributions of members is categorized in gender, mode of representation and status of MPs, and mode of ascension to Parliament.

3.1 Members of Parliament by gender
